PROFILE

As a student studying Illustration at the Savannah College of Art & Design, in Savannah, GA, I took an elective course in mural painting. Here I learned the impact public art can have on a community. I worked in the classroom, designing and collaborating with other artists, and on the field, with volunteers and kids. I was taught how to prepare all types of outdoor and indoor surfaces for painting, the process of converting a small drawing to a large wall, the legalities of working on private and public properties, and maintaining murals that have faded over time.
